

GEN. STOESSEL HAS REPORTED A JAP REPULSE

Frightful Conditions at Port Arthur.

Tokyo Reports Russia to be Trying Desperately to Retake Her Lost Positions.

Chefoo, Oct. 3.—An official report from General Stoessel dated Sept. 23, reached Chefoo today confirming the previous reports of repulse of the Japanese attack of Port Arthur which began Sept. 19 and ended Sept. 22. The Japanese having retired, General Stoessel issued the following proclamation: "Glory, thanks, to God; Glory to our heroic garrison; Glory to Ilman, Sychaff and Pogorsky, heroes all; thanks to our valiant volunteers who routed the enemy from the trenches, destroying them. God has permitted us to repulse the enemy. Praise to God."

The volunteers referred to by Stoessel were made up of regulars called upon to take the high hill which has been captured by the Japanese. From semi-official sources it was learned that the attack by Nogi's forces began on 19th along the whole line and lasted four days.

High Hill mentioned was a very important position to Russia. An attempt to retake this hill being extremely hazardous, Stoessel refused to issue an order, but called for volunteers. Everybody called upon responded whereupon the requisite number of men were selected. Soldiers and officers alike carried grenades, and with these attacked the Japanese temporary fortifications and drove the enemy from all of their positions. Several mines were exploded during the battle causing severe losses.

Tokyo, Oct. 3.—The navy department today reports the destruction of another Russian steamer while clearing the mines at the entrance to Port Arthur. The reported loss of a Japanese submarine at the port is not confirmed.

London, Oct. 3.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Reuter Telegram company today wires that a Russian war ship, supposed to be the Bayan, is reported anchored off Gutzloff island in Hang Chau Bay. Tugs have departed to bring the vessel to Shanghai. The Bayan is one of the vessels which returned to Port Arthur after the disastrous sortie of August 10.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 3.—News from Port Arthur today states that forage there is scarce but ammunition is plentiful. Clothing is lacking but stores of cloth are being made into garments by the women. The sanitary condition is good. There are now thirty trained nurses for every thousand sick and wounded there are but 100 women and children not belonging to the military forces in town. As the odor from the dead combatants, of necessity left on the field, has been blowing into the town, the Russians have forced the Chinese to collect the bodies and throw them into the sea.

Tokyo, Oct. 3.—The Russians are reported to be desperately endeavoring to retake their lost positions, including Port Kuropatkin, in the hope of restoring the water supply of Port Arthur. They are said to have repeatedly assaulted the Japanese after shelling from neighboring forts and batteries. The Japanese continue to hold the positions. Both sides are said to have suffered severely. The newly mounted heavy Japanese guns are said to command the entire harbor. The position of the remnant of the Port Arthur fleet is said to be precarious and it is believed the vessels must soon emerge or be destroyed. Advances from Manchuria are to the effect that the Japanese and Russian outposts and scouts continue in close contact south, southeast and east of Mukden. Skirmishes are occurring daily and aggressive general action is expected soon. It is believed that the general engagement will take place near Tie pass and that General Kuropatkin is holding Mukden and positions along the Hun river merely to temporarily check the Japanese advance. Snow has fallen in the mountains east of Mukden and there has been frost in the valleys.

Baltic Fleet to Sail.
St. Petersburg, Oct. 3.—Announcement is made that Emperor Nicholas will visit Reval on Tuesday to bid farewell to the Baltic squadron. After months of preparation and several false starts it is believed that the squadron is at last on the eve of its departure upon its long journey. A division in the admiralty has existed throughout the period of preparation regarding the advisability of sending out the squadron, but, with the decision to double the size of the Manchurian army and press the war with vigor, the logic of those who for

THOUSAND

Called Back to Work at Pullman Shops--Union Not Recognized.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The blowing of whistles at the Pullman car works called a thousand men back to work today after four weeks of enforced idleness. The men were marshaled in front of the sawmill and hired as they came. There was no recognition of any such thing as a labor union and each application was made individually. The old terms were offered and accepted. There was no necessity for any extra police protection. Five thousand workmen must wait for a few weeks longer before they get back. The company is out of raw material for the building of cars and this must be prepared.

A CONFESSION BY CHARLES KELLY WHO IS CONVICTED

Says Col. Butler Gave Him $15,000 to Flee.

Kelly's Confession Implicates Another St. Louisan Whose Name is Not Yet Given.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—Chas. F. Kelly, former speaker of the house of delegates, who is under conviction for perjury in connection with the "boodle" cases and whose trial for bribery will come up this week, appeared at the Four Courts building today and distributed among the newspaper men there a written confession of the circumstances surrounding his flight to Europe, when wanted as a witness against Col. D. D. Butler, the noted political "boss," in the lighting bribery case.

Kelly declares that Butler gave him $15,000 to flee and he further declares that an agent of Butler joined him in London and remained with him abroad.

Kelly's confession also implicates another St. Louisan, whose name he does not mention, who, he says, visited him at Sault Ste. Marie, while he was en route to Europe and gave him $800.

YOUNG WOMAN

Richly Gowned is Found in Allegheny River--The Police of Pittsburgh Puzzled.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 3.—The local police are wrestling with what appears to be a mysterious murder case. The body of a young woman, richly appareled in silks, laces and velvets, was found in the Allegheny river a short distance below Union bridge. The body, which had evidently been in the water but a few hours, bore three wounds on the forehead, such as might have been made by a blunt instrument, and several small cuts, evidently made by a razor. Rivermen who occupy boat houses near where the body was found report having heard two men on the wharf talking in excited tones about 3 o'clock in the morning.

Convict Pardoned.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 3.—Acting Governor Thorne pardoned Clem Butcher, who was sent up from Louisville for murder. The petition filed for his release states that he has locomotor ataxia, is nearly blind and his mind is deranged. It also points in the saddest way to the pitiable condition of Butcher's poor old mother. The petition is signed by Scott Newman, F. J. Herrman, Charles Neumeier, Casper Hammer and about 100 other citizens of Louisville.

The attendance record for the past week was 722,565.

TARIFF, TRUSTS AND IMPERIALISM ARE DISCUSSED

By Senator Davis in His Letter of Acceptance.

A Synopsis of Mr. Davis' Communication to the Democratic Notification Committee.

Elkins, W. Va., Oct. 3.—Hon. Henry G. Davis, Democratic candidate for vice president, has penned his formal letter of acceptance and the same has been made public. He addresses the communication to the notification committee, of which Hon. John Sharp Williams is chairman. Mr. Davis says in part:

"The times are propitious for the reinstatement of the Democratic party in control of the government. Thoughtful and patriotic people are becoming more and more distrustful of the personal element of the present administration, and are more than willing to see it replaced by one that better recognizes constitutional and other lawful restraints."

The expenditure per capita of the government are increasing at an alarming rate. When the present administration went into power there was a large surplus, but notwithstanding the enormous taxation, the revenues therefrom are not now adequate to meet the demands made by reckless appropriations. The revenues fell short during the last fiscal year over $40,000,000. In the first 60 days of this fiscal year the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $24,000,000, and if this rate of excess should continue the deficit for the present fiscal year would be in the neighborhood of $140,000,000. To show the rapid growth of the cost of government it is only necessary to give the total expenditures in the last fiscal year of the following administrations: Buchanan, 1860, $62,000,000, per capita $2.91; Cleveland, 1896, $345,000,000, per capita $5.29; Roosevelt, 1904, $552,000,000, per capita $7.14.

We all hail as the harbinger of the new era in the commerce of the world the inception of the great work of building the canal that is to join the two great oceans, but we deprecate the action of the present administration, which indicated a wound upon our national honor by its disregard of the rights of a weaker nation, in order to gain a doubtful credit for energy in forwarding that great enterprise. These and many other unwarranted things that belong more to an empire than a republic have occurred under the present administration, and brought deep concern and alarm to thoughtful and patriotic minds.

That many of the existing tariff rates are excessive and enable powerful combinations to extort unjust and oppressive tribute from the people can not be controverted. The tariff is undoubtedly too high upon such articles as enables the manufacturer to sell his products abroad at a price higher than he can obtain in the domestic market. Steel rails are a conspicuous example in this respect. A few years ago they were freely sold in this country at $17 a ton. They are now selling at $28 a ton, and for the foreign market at from $18 to $22 a ton. The average selling price of 100 articles, taken principally from the iron and steel list, is found to be about 20 per cent higher in this country than abroad. Relief from these conditions will only come through the success of the Democratic party.

It is estimated that there are in the United States between two and three hundred combinations of capital and corporate interests, known as trusts, which have grown up in the last few years under Republican rule. Some of them are so conducted as to be pernicious and harmful to the general interest. The effort of these trusts is to control or monopolize, and these monopolies, when unrestrained, seem to produce conditions which bring about strikes and disorders, and disturb the business affairs of the country.

The declaration in the St. Louis platform in favor of arbitration is one that appeals to my sense of fairness. Its permanent establishment as a part of the industrial system of the country, upon a basis of mutual consent of all parties to a controversy, would insure more friendly relations between employer and employee, for the interest of the workingman and the employer is identical. All lovers of the country must deprecate the rehabilitation by the Republican party of a disappearing race issue, at a time when every effort should be made to promote rather than retard the progress which was being made in the states where slavery had existed, toward kindlier relations between the two races. The revival of this issue, with all its attendant evils, must of necessity retard the development of the southern states.

Cotton Mill Strike.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 3.—With the opening of the eleventh week of the cotton mill strike the prospect of a settlement seems somewhat brighter owing to active measures taken by the local merchants. Letters have been sent to both manufacturers and operatives requesting that the two sides hold an early conference, and a favorable reply has been received from the operatives. The manufacturers will receive their letters today. The merchants now believe that they have discovered mutual grounds upon which negotiations may be reopened, and that some settlement will be reached within a short time.

Mrs. di Pietro told her husband of Rogo's actions, and last Friday he bought her a pistol and told her to shoot if Rogo bothered her again. She is under arrest.

DISOBEYED

Orders and the Engineer Was Fatally Hurt and His Fireman Killed in the Collision.

Lima, O., Oct. 3.—Disobedience to the yard rule for speed caused a head-on collision between two locomotives on the Lake Erie and Western in the yards here, the death of John V. Carrig, unmarried, fireman on the freight engine and possibly fatally injuring Engineer J. M. Bacon.

Freight engine 224 in charge of Engineer Bacon and fireman Carrig, held orders to go to Brighton for the Northern Ohio division. The switching crew which had been at work at the Detroit Southern "Y" two miles east of the city, was returning with two loaded cars. Engineer John Quillan saw the approaching light engine around the curve at the Jefferson street crossing and brought the switch engine to a standstill. All the crew jumped. Fireman Carrig was shoveling coal and Engineer Bacon, against the yard rule, was dashing along at 20 miles an hour, and engaged with the injector never saw the locomotive in front of him until the crash. Fireman Carrig was buried beneath the debris and burned to death, while Bacon was thrown into a field.

The engines met head on and were badly wrecked, property loss being estimated at $5,000.

SWUNG UP

And Shot Was John Morrison, a White Man, Who Killed W. T. Floyd.

Kingston, S. C., Oct. 3.—Later details of the lynching of the white man, John Morrison, who killed Will T. Floyd at Kershaw are at hand. Immediately after the killing of Floyd and the arrest of Morrison feeling became intense. There was little said, but it soon became known that the sheriff of Lancaster was on his way to assist in protecting the prisoner. An electric light had been placed before the guardhouse and a policeman was on guard. At about 8 o'clock the light went out and a crowd poured into the alley, overpowered the policeman, took the keys and brought Morrison out. He was taken just outside the town limits and hanged to a tree with a pair of buggy lines. Two shots were fired into Morrison's back as he swung. Sheriff Hunter of Lancaster, with deputies, arrived at Kershaw on a special train a few minutes after the guardhouse was forced and he heard the pistol shots. He began searching for the lynching party and found the body about midnight. Troops from Camden arrived later. An inquest was held and the usual verdict rendered. No arrests have been made.

RIVER SHIFTING

The Rio Grande May Occupy the Ancient Channel of the Arroyo, Colorado.

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 3.—From all indications now at hand from recent reports received from the overflowed country in the Brownsville section, it appears that there is a strong probability that the bed of the Rio Grande will be shown, when the waters have receded, to be occupying the bed of the Arroyo Colorado, which ages ago was its original bed.

TWELVE DEAD WATROUS TOWN WASHED AWAY

Immense Damage is Done by the Flood.

Dams Break and Four Terrific Torrents on City Bridges and Tracks Destroyed.

Las Vegas, N. M., Oct. 3.—At least 12 persons were drowned and half the town of Watrous swept away by recent floods. Among these were the three children of J. A. Stevens: Felix Villarel, his wife, two sisters and seven children, and O. F. Porter, J. E. Stevens and his wife escaped and have been brought here. They are in a critical condition. Many persons were rescued from trees and house-tops. The greatest damage was around the junction of Mora and Sapollo creeks. The rock crusher, the great iron bridge and much track at Watrous were washed away. The Gallinas river formed a new channel here. In the Gallinas canyon the dams of the Aqua Pura company broke, bringing a terrific flood on the city. The Montezuma hot springs track went out in many places. Half a dozen bridges were destroyed and the Montezuma bathhouses were partly carried away. For two blocks on Bridge street every business house was flooded. The big Illinois brick store was ruined and the big bridge undermined. Gallinas park is under water and the trolley line can not be repaired for two weeks. One hundred thousand dollars will not cover the loss to the town, and the railroad loss is equal to that of the recent floods in Arizona. From Santa Rosa comes a report of the loss of the great iron bridge of the Rock Island road and much track with it.

Tracks Washed Out.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 3.—Reports from the floods in the Rio Grande valley above and below this city are coming in. The towns of Valencia and Los Lunas were completely washed away and several hundred families are homeless. The river swept to the east, cut a new channel, and poured a torrent through the two towns. No lives were lost. The Barbra suburb of this city suffered the most, about 50 houses being destroyed. Ignacio Gutierrez, a commissioner of Sandoval county, telephoned that the damage at Los Cordales and Alameda, above the city, will amount to several hundred thousand dollars. There is one passenger train from southern California at Gallup and another from San Francisco at Winston, while the other trains from California are held here. The local officials can not say when the trains will arrive or depart, and the traffic situation is serious. Many feet of track is reported gone at Ortiz, at Cerrillos, Waldo, Thornton and Bernalillo, and above and below this city at Rincon, Amarillo, N. M., and Isleta.

"Kill!" from hundreds of throats, but Officer Goods and Marshal Mahone, who came to the assistance of the arresting officer, drew their revolvers and held the crowd at bay until other officers arrived, when a cordon was formed, and amid jeers and threats the murderer was taken to the city jail, where he is now confined.

SINKING SPELL IS SUFFERED BY HENRY C. PAYNE

Postmaster General Near Deaths' Door.

There is Only the Slightest Hope that Mr. Payne Will Survive the Day. Has Rallied Somewhat.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning Postmaster General Henry C. Payne had another sinking spell, which continued until about 7 o'clock. During that period his death was expected momentarily, and only the use of the most powerful stimulants in large doses prevented dissolution. Since seven o'clock today the patient has rallied somewhat, but the danger of his death is said to be imminent, and there is only the slightest hope that he will be able to survive the day.

At 1:45 p. m. information was brought from the sick room that Postmaster General Payne was rapidly growing weaker. He had another sinking spell at 11 a. m., and one at 1 p. m. These spells are becoming more frequent and heroic treatment is of less avail and more frequently demanded.

Washington, Oct. 3.—After a day filled with strong hopes, alternating with the gravest fears of almost immediate dissolution, Postmaster General Payne's condition was declared by his physicians to be decidedly more encouraging, but they are unwilling to hazard an opinion as to the future. At times he suffered intense pain, and once or twice he cried out in his agony. These paroxysms were followed by periods of exhaustion, with brief intervals of comparative freedom from pain, but the heart action continued to give the physicians the greatest concern. Several times the pulse became so feeble that it seemed to cease altogether, and at one time the physicians said the postmaster general was as near death as few ever get and survive.

At 2 a. m. Dr. Magruder left the sick room for his home, leaving Dr. Grayson in charge. Dr. Magruder said that the postmaster general was retaining his nourishment and had had no sinking spells during the evening, and when he awoke from his sleep, which was necessarily fitful, he was able to recognize those about him. Dr. Magruder added that Mr. Payne's heart action continues good. This morning there was no change reported in Postmaster General Payne's condition.

TORMENTING RHEUMATISM

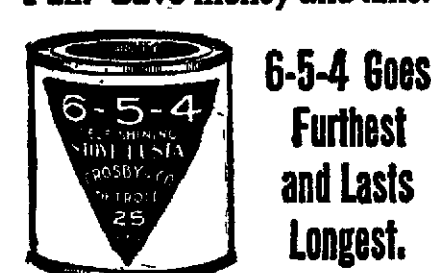

Columbus, Ohio, May 20, 1903.
Six years ago I had a severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was laid up in bed for six months, and the doctors I had did me no good. They changed medicines every week and nothing they prescribed seemed to help me. Finally I began the use of S. S. S. My knee and elbow joints were swollen terribly, and at one time my joints were so swollen and painful that I could not close them when opened. I was so bad that I could not move knee or foot. I was getting discouraged, you may be sure, when I began S. S. S., but as I saw it was helping me I continued it, and to-day I am a sound well man and have never had a return of the disease. S. S. S. purified my blood and cured me of this severe case of Rheumatism after everything else had failed. I have recommended it to others with good results.
R. H. CHAPMAN.

The poisonous acids that produce the inflammation and pain are absorbed into the blood and Rheumatism can never be conquered till these are neutralized and filtered out of the blood and system. S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation and attacks the disease itself. It purifies and restores the blood to a healthy, vigorous condition. It contains no potent, alkaline or other strong minerals, but is guaranteed entirely vegetable. Write us and our physicians will advise without any charge whatever. Our book on Rheumatism sent free.

A Tree That Was Growing Four Hundred Years Before Columbus Sailed Westward—Medicinal Plants From North Carolina Enough to Fill an Apothecary Shop—Inhabitants of Carolina Forests—Something From the Argentina For Railroad Men. Some Other Valuable Things From the Great South American Republic. Beavers From Canada Give Bustle to the Forestry Palace.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE BY MARK BENNETT)

A tiny seed of a yellow poplar tree fell in southern soil one day some 400 years before the western continent was discovered by Columbus, and a tree sprang up. A remarkably fine specimen of treewood it must have been—little stalwart and self-reliant. The other trees of the forest must have stood about it and, pointing toward it with admiration, said with common voice, "There is a tree." In summer it laughed with the breeze with its brilliant leaves and in winter sang to the wind with its bare branches. Each year it wound about itself a new ring like it should forget its age and lifted its head higher among its fellows. What a tale it might tell of "The Trees I Knew" or "The Animals That Were My Friends!"

By diligence and strict attention to business this tree had put on enough rings to make a girl of 120 inches when Columbus broke into history. No act of Columbus was permitted to interfere, however, with the purposes of this yellow poplar, and it continued its ambitious career for another four centuries, the boundaries of North Carolina meantime having been thrown around its abiding place. This is how it comes about that we find in the North Carolina forestry exhibit this section of a yellow poplar tree 800 years old, registered from North Carolina, but representing a prehistoric age. It comes from Cherokee county and grew on the banks of Hanging Dog creek. The specimen, a section of the trunk, is seventy-two inches across. It was 130 feet high, 90 feet to the first four limbs, a compact and magnificent tree.

In the North Carolina exhibit in the Palace of Forestry are seventy-five kinds of commercial woods, all displayed in commercial form. Each specimen is a four inch plank, four feet long, with bark on both edges. Half the surface is natural and half finished with oil and varnish. Of the seventy-five specimens the most abundant in North Carolina's vast forests are the yellow poplar, pine, cypress, gum, oak, maple, birch, chestnut, ash, red and white cedar. Here, too, is a great collection of forest seeds, as well worthy of a few minutes' examination as anything I can suggest. Upon shelves in glass jars are 440 kinds of medicinal plants, roots, woods and barks from North Carolina, and I am told that this collection is incomplete by about sixty specimens. And yet osteopathy continues to flourish, not even countenancing boneset.

The shredded pine leaf industry has sprung up in North Carolina as in other states having pine forests, and the product takes rank as a staple in the manufacture of furniture, mattresses and pillows. A famous old black walnut tree of Moore Cove, Jackson county, which contained originally 8,000 feet of lumber, is represented here by one of the big logs. The other parts of the great tree, owing to the rare beauty of the grain, are doing duty as veneers on numberless fine pianos scattered throughout the world. To what great uses may a humble tree come at last!

That tall animal, with lank body and long legs, heavy tail and savage look, which holds first place on top of the animal case in the North Carolina exhibit in the Forestry palace is the last of his race in that state. Even the old inhabitants have forgotten him and his cry, which echoed through the lone some forest like that of a lost child. The panther was for many years the chief character in shudder stories told to children at twilight, but he is going the way of the dinosaur and the pterosaur.

But Carolina woods do not lack inhabitants of a most interesting kind. They are all here, primped and combed, the best foot forward and the best side out—the busy beaver, with his frumpy flat tail; the tiny otter, whose skin is so rare and fine; the gray fox and red fox, the butt of fable makers; the bear, humorist of the woods; the skunk, opossum and coon. It is worth your while to see the albino opossum and the yellow coon, two freaks of nature with her children of the forests.

Mr. Railroad Man, allow me, this is Quebracho Colorado, the sleeper, slept for thirty years, read the placard. You should know him. He is good for fifty years in the same capacity. It is only a few steps from North Carolina to Argentina, as distances are measured at the fair. To win the eye a lifeboat made of beautiful Argentine woods, looms up as the centerpiece of the section. All around this masterpiece of lifeboat construction from the south Atlantic are grouped the commercial woods of the Argentine Republic. The money maker of the exhibit is the Quebracho Colorado, or, as we would say it in the United States tongue, the red quebracho. You couldn't miss it if you "wood." It is one of the hardest woods you ever saw and the specimens on display show it to be one of the most lasting. Here is a railroad tie after thirty years' struggle, not much for looks on the outside, but no decay within. The red quebracho contains 20 per cent of tannin and is best known in Europe on account of its richness in this ingredient. Ties of the quebracho make not only a very solid railway, because of the great solidity and weight of the wood, but if properly prepared are good for fifty years of wear. These are the claims advanced for one of the most abundant woods of Argentine forests which the railroads of that country have generally adopted.

The intensely practical character of the Argentine forestry exhibit cannot be overlooked. Here is a great quantity of breagum to take the place of rosin in the manufacture of varnishes. It is not brittle like "ruzzum," but so tough that one may break a small piece of it only with difficulty. It has a sweet taste and has its uses also in the manufacture of confectionery.

Here are palm trees cut to show what excellent telegraph poles are possible from them; here are coigne from Tierra del Fuego, the extreme southern part of Argentina, the favorite wood used in the cooperage industry; here are square paying blocks of wood, a pyramid of them, easy for the horses, but not generally in favor in the United States, even though treated with creosote and made resistant to decay; here are, in fact, 150 kinds of wood out of 405 species found in the Argentine Republic, embracing beautiful cabinet woods, one that is specially favored for piano cases, the guayacan, one of the handsomest cabinet woods in the world.

Besides the rich display of the real products of her forests, the Argentine government has taken advantage of the large wall space to acquaint the visitor with the forest scenery of the country. It is easy to get acquainted with Senor Guillermo F. Gerling, commissioner of the forestal section, and a trip through Argentine woods and photo scenes with him is time delightfully and profitably spent.

As we leave the Palace of Forestry let's stop to see those four footed hydraulic engineers from Canada—the beavers. This is an exposition of "doing things," and we find the beavers busy. A cement tank of water four feet deep is divided by wire partitions into four rooms. Upon a central platform above the water are displayed specimens of their molar work. It is by far the most artistic gnawing displayed by any exhibitor. Here we have together the raw material, the workman at his task and the finished product. The village consists of eight or ten residents, and the fair visitor may learn the beaver's trade if he may do so by observation, as the arrangement admits of no secrecy. A swift stream of water flows into the tank from a big pipe, and the beavers enjoy the frequent plunges into the clear depths like so many small boys in the edge of a cool lake. Unluckily there is no place for the beaver to show his skill at dam construction, but when we see what he can do with his little incisors, his paws and flat tail we can take a few other things on hearsay.

SWEETHEARTS STINGY.

Logansport (Ind.) Girls Rebel Against Penurious Suitors.

Twenty girls of Logansport, Ind., on pledge that their names would not be made public, recently signed a petition which they presented to a Logansport paper for publication, voicing an indignant protest against penurious sweethearts, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. The petition reads:

"This is a complaint from representative girls of Logansport, who cry for relief from the condition that has prevailed since Logansport was founded. 'We refer to the utter selfishness of the city's young men. They are content to sit around our homes, allowing us to fan them, to eat our fudge and in return to bestow the blessing of their company upon us. But when anything comes up involving an expenditure of money, that is a different matter.

"If smiles cost young men anything, they would not be so generous even with them. Such a thing as taking their sweethearts buggy riding, or to the theater, or sending them sweets, flowers, books or music, is unknown."

JOKE ON C. M. SCHWAB.

Sole Man at Girls' Banquet, He Told a Story.

Rippling girlhood, a confusion of beauty and the laughter of innocence broke the serene peace of Mount Aloysius academy at Cresson, Pa., when its girls returned to drink a toast to memories, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. At the banquet this otherwise Adamless Eden was invaded by Charles M. Schwab. Miss Ann d'Inville's toasted "Our Alumnus" with an original verse, and as it is Charles M. Schwab who has that distinction he responded as follows:

"It is with reluctance that I address this remarkable assemblage. When I hear such flattering remarks I always repeat a story. I was riding home one afternoon from the works in my buggy with Bob, a negro, driving me. We came to a woman, a workman's wife, and a little girl. 'Look,' said the child, 'there's Mr. Schwab.' Glancing in our direction, the woman said, 'Which one?'

The fiddler in the fall.
Summer time a-go!
Hear the partridge call!
An' all the time I'm thinkin'
Of the fiddler in the fall!

I'm fiddlin' in the furrow
An' shufflin' in the hall;
The very wind is singin'
Like the fiddler in the fall!

Oh, happy time a-comin'—
You jest make up for all!
Throw wide the rattlin' winders
To the fiddler in the fall!

Day Dreams

By A. M. Davies Ogden

Copyright, 1904, by A. M. Davies Ogden

The late spring afternoon sunshine flooded gloriously into the bare, old studio, lighting the dreamy, sensitive face of the young man who stood by the piano pouring out his soul in melody. It flung a golden aureole around the head of the girl who, nearly lost in a big arm chair, sat absorbed.

"Adelaide, Adelaide," sang out the notes of Beethoven's passionate love song, and the girl's eyes filled with tears as the music swayed her young, untutored nature. And how well Harry Walters looked when he sang!

Her thoughts, uncontrolled, wandered back to the day when they had first met, many months before. Newly arrived in Dresden, she and her father had driven out to Potschappel to inspect the big china factory; but, at her father's request for some one to show them about, the big German in charge flung up his hands.

"Aber, I spik no English," he began plaintively. Then, at sight of a passer-by, his face brightened.

"Ach, Herr Walters," he cried, and the person addressed, turning, came back with lifted cap.

"Can I be of any service?" he asked in English. Mr. Hoffman looked revered.

"I want somebody to show me about," he exclaimed, and the young man smiled.

"The Herr Direktor and I are old friends," he responded. "If I can be of any assistance?" The girl's eyes thanked him.

When they parted it was with a low bow and a mutual, if unspoken, wish that they might meet again, and a few nights later at a court ball, seeing the girl, Walters made haste to be duly presented in form.

"These balls are such jolly little affairs," he laughed. "Given a letter of introduction or two and they will invite even a poor musical student like myself. And how do you find Dresden? Have you 'done' the green vaults, the galleries and so forth? No? Fancy."

"Father does not care much for ordinary sightseeing," declared the girl. Walters eyed her rather doubtfully.

"If I might be permitted to take you around a bit," he suggested. "It would be a great pleasure. Oh, may I really?" As the girl nodded. "Let's start tomorrow."

Such was the beginning of their friendship, and as the days drifted into spring there were little excursions up

"MILICENT! IS IT REALLY YOU?"

the river to be made, lingerings on the Bruch-Terrasse lighting to the band in the garden on the other bank; long hours spent in the galleries with pauses before the Sistine Madonna or some other treasure in that wonderful storehouse of art. Then suddenly one day Mr. Hoffman awoke to the fact that his daughter, although but seventeen, was no longer a child. Realizing that this prolonged companionship with an earnest young musician might prove dangerous to one, if not to both, he took passage back to America, and to-night he and his daughter were to leave for Bremen. This was goodbye.

"Adelaide," sang the voice, putting into the song all that the singer dared not say, and the girl trembled responsively. With a final harmony the melody stopped. Through the door the accompanist slipped away. Mr. Hoffman turned to the window. The girl held out both hands.

"Goodbye," she murmured. Walters, shaken, leaned forward.

"You will not forget?" he begged. And the girl smiled, a slow loyal smile.

"I will not forget."

As the train rolled its way through the night the girl's eyes filled again with tears, the facile tears of youth, with turn so quickly to rainbows as hope really spans the years. Then, clasping a little blue ring and a cluster of forget-me-nots, she fell asleep.

The windows of Cliff Towers were brilliant with lights. Strains of music floated out to the watchers in the street. Mrs. Livingston was "at home," and Bellevue avenue was crowded with arriving guests and curious spectators.

The band on the lawn began to play "Wine, Women and Song," and the beautiful Miss Hoffman stepped through the long French windows upon the terrace.

The shimmer of moonlight on the water was exquisite. What did it and the music seem to recall? Ah, Dresden! The girl shivered. How long it was since she had thought of Dresden! The man beside her started apprehensively.

"Are you cold? Shall I bring you a wrap?" he asked. She assented.

She wished to be rid of him to think for a moment, Dresden! Walters' face, his happy, boyish, half boastful talk, struggled into her thoughts. "Wait until I sing in the Metropolitan," he had laughed.

And now? Should he make his debut there she would be in her box, tiara crowned. But she would throw him some flowers in memory of the little ring now crushed and broken, with a faded spray of forget-me-nots, far back in a drawer of her desk. For a moment the girl's face showed hard and cynical in the moonlight.

There was a stir within the house. The prelude of a song came to her. Then a rich tenor voice broke into the refrain "Adelaide, Adelaide." A famous tenor was singing and the girl's eyes dimmed. "Adelaide!" A step sounded behind her. She turned to see Renshaw, her lace scarf in his hand. Something in his expression warned the girl that the crisis which she had so long been evading could be postponed no longer. Her decision must be made. He was young, rich, good looking. Why could she not care for him? Had she not hoped for this, tried for this? Was it not expected of her? Her breath quickened and she lifted her head. Well, he should have his answer.

The morning was clear, but cold, and on the crowded ferryboat only two people, a man and a woman, dared brave the forward deck. The woman showed lines of suffering and self-reliance in her face and a great sweetness. The man, wrapped in a heavy coat, was humming to himself, "Adelaide, Adelaide." He breathed, and the woman, with a sudden start, turned. Recognition leaped to both pair of eyes.

"Millicent! Is it really you? How I have searched for a trace of you!" he cried. "But at your former home they only said that you had gone."

"After father died I had to leave New York," she said simply. "I have been doing typewriting, proofreading, what I could get. You know I am poor."

"You!" cried the man again. "You! Typewriting! And I! Well, I have not made the Metropolitan and probably never will now. Some of the old dreams are lost. But for the rest—what little success I have won has been due to you. Always it has been the thought of you that has spurred me on. It has always been your eyes. Millicent, do you remember the old days? Can we go back to them? Must all the dreams go, or have you forgotten?" There was a note of entreaty in his voice, and the girl's color deepened; then she smiled back at him.

"One can never go back. But perhaps one can start afresh," she answered. "And I have never forgotten."

When Barnum's Burned.

Barnum's museum, destroyed July 13, 1893, was one of the most amusing fires that ever occurred in New York city. It was in the daytime. Chief John Decker was in charge, assisted by Orr, Bates, Lamb, Cleary, Everett and Sullivan. Thousands crowded Broadway clear up to Park place as well as Park row, while the park in front was black with people. It was fun to see the boys at the outset of the fire bringing out Barnum's old stuffed images and wax figures. One fellow ran out with Henry Clay under one arm and General Winfield Scott under the other. Queen Victoria was dragged out by the hair of her head. Mary, queen of Scots, was tossed out of the second story window, followed by Hicks the pirate. Head Carpenter Walker of the theater, who was also a member of Engine No. 88, that lay in Ann street, got so excited that he fell headlong down the main entrance stairway with Napoleon in one hand and Walker, filibuster, in the other.

The happy family that attracted so much attention in those days were determined not to leave. The cage door was thrown wide open and the birds and animals punched with sticks to drive them out, but few would accept their liberty and were burned to death. All of the 100,000 curiosities were destroyed.

Remembered the Places.

In the days of his youth, "befo' de war," it had been the privilege of Uncle Eph Slater to attend his master as body servant upon several extended journeys. To mention the name of another town or locality was enough to start him on his reminiscences, and so jealous did he grow of his reputation as a traveler that he always declared he had visited the place in question whether he had or not.

One day an acquaintance, Deacon Thompson, met Uncle Eph on the street and told him of the arrival in the village of the new schoolma'am, whose acquisitions, he had heard, were of a high order.

"H'm," said Uncle Eph, "yeh don't say; yeh don't say. I wonder, now, be de young lady had much trabbel?"

"I dunno 'bout dat," replied the deacon, "but my Lize tells me she dun been troo butony, algerbar 'n' Latin."

"Uh huh," said Uncle Eph reflectively and not in the least nonplussed. "I recollects dem little places, foh sho; but it was night w'en we passed troo 'em, 'n' Marse Richard he 'lowed it wuzn't w'ith while stoppin' off."—Harper's Magazine.

TRINITY CHOIR

A LARGE AUDIENCE ATTENDED
"TRIAL BY JURY."

And Enjoyed the Program Saturday Evening—Good Sum Realized by Entertainment.

A large and fashionable audience assembled at Trinity Parish House on Saturday night to hear the choir concert.

The opening numbers were excellent. Miss Irwin's solo was sung finely.
Little Paul Russell, the boy soprano was much applauded in "Blue Bell," while Mr. Will Reynolds' solo with trio accompaniment, and Mr. Walter B. Ball, with his delightful group of Irish songs was vociferously encoured. Mr. Frank Reynolds' baritone song was a great treat in the world of tone and he met with much appreciation. Robert Kern as a reader, scored a big success.

The climax of the evening was Gilbert and Sullivan's gem of a cantata,
"Trial by Jury." Mr. Will Reynolds certainly carried off the honors by his superb rendition of the "Judge." His singing was magnificent and his acting and appearance beyond praise.

Mr. Walter Ball as the solemn and impressive usher sang splendidly and looked the part.

Mr. Herve Reynolds, as counsel for plaintiff, lent a touch of his comic opera experience both in the conception of his part and make up. He sang his lines well.

Mr. Norton Beecher caught the audience with his deliciously scampy part and impertinent songs.

The pretty little plaintiff, Miss Irene Henthorne, with her troop of bridesmaids, won the audience with her sweet soprano. The chorus work was capital and reflects great credit on Mr.
Reynolds and his assistant, Miss Florence King; also the chorus for their excellent work and long practice. A nice sum was realized for the choir boys' outing fund.

Rally Day and Harvest Home.

Sunday was Rally Day at the East
Main street United Brethren church.
The attendance a Sunday School had dwindled down to 126 members during the summer, and an effort was made to get the old scholars started again, and to enroll a number of new members.
On the platform was a ten foot streamer announcing a welcome to all, while a supply of the products of the field and garden announced that the harvest had been gathered in. It was a beautiful sight when the members of the Cradle Roll department came to the front, borne in the arms of their mothers, and were introduced to the school by Superintendent E. A. Cochran, all present giving the Chautauqua salute. The credit of the Success of these two departments is due Mrs.
Bovey and Mrs. A. B. Schlatterbeck.
All pronounced it a decided success.
Three hundred were present and the offering amounted to $9.

REGISTRATION DAYS

Every voter in the city of Newark is required to register this year in order to enable him to cast his ballot this fall. Everybody who is by reason of age, legal residence and other qualification of citizenship, eligible to vote for President, Tuesday, November 8, 1904, MUST REGISTER anew this year, regardless of any and all previous registrations.

The days for registration are as follows:

THURSDAY, OCT. 13.
THURSDAY, OCT. 20.
FRIDAY, OCT. 28.
SATURDAY, OCT. 29.

The difference between the continental threat of war and permanent realization of peace is the difference between a Rough Rider and a Judge.

It required three years for President Roosevelt to lose the sympathy and co-operation of the leaders of his party, but it has taken less than three months for Judge Parker to gain the entire confidence of the leaders of his party.

It is now admitted that the leather trust owes its existence entirely to its generosity toward the Republican campaign fund. Neither the leather producers nor manufacturers have any use for it, and the public is robbed by it every day.

The voter who believes that local questions should stand by themselves and not be mixed up with state and national politics, will have an opportunity to resent the enactment of the law abolishing spring elections by voting for Democratic candidates for state and local offices.

The average citizen of Ohio will be confronted by a ballot big with names of candidates for state and local offices. He will be asked to intelligently consider the names and give his vote for the one he believes best qualified for the office.

FIRST STEPS IN IMPERIALISM

It is interesting and instructive during the present campaign to trace the first steps of imperialism, with which the United States entered the career of Oriental conquest that has since involved the nation in a policy of colonialism exactly patterned after the British system against which our forefathers revolted.

The initial mistake—to use a military term—was the monumental blunder of the McKinley administration, consisting of a declaration of war against the Philippines by the mandate of the executive branch of the government, without any action whatsoever on the part of the legislative branch, and even without the knowledge of the people's representatives in congress.

Under an empire such an autocratic act of the head of the government would have been in accordance with the spirit of imperial institutions and justified by precedent; but in this republic it was happily without precedent and explicitly forbidden by the Constitution, which confers upon congress alone the right to declare war. When the administration ignored the legislative body and arrogated to itself powers conferred exclusively on the representatives of the people, the empire had birth in this country and began to supersede the republic. How this was accomplished, the facts of modern history relate without the possibility of any misunderstanding or denial.

Under the Constitution the treaty-making power rests in the United States senate. No treaty can have existence in fact until ratified by the senate. The treaty of peace which concluded the Spanish-American war was signed by representatives of the two governments December 10, 1898. It was not transmitted to the senate by the president of the United States until January 4, 1899, and was not ratified until February 10, and the last act necessary to perfect its status was performed March 17, 1899, when the Queen Regent of Spain attached her signature to it. Nearly two months, therefore, elapsed between the time the treaty was signed by its negotiators and its ratification by the American senate; and more than three months elapsed between the time it had to thank the Republican Seventy-sixth General Assembly.

According to the modern theory of Republican imperialism the promise of self-government in Cuba is a sure guarantee of prosperity, but in the Philippines can bring only disaster and ruin. It is not surprising that no diagrams have been published to substantiate this proposition.

Washington wouldn't take a third offer, Grant couldn't get one, and Foraker was denied when he pleaded for one. The Republican bosses think, however, that Secretary of State McKinley can obtain what the foregoing three never had, if the attempt is kept under cover of national politics.

One of the effects of the present war between Russia and Japan, is an increase in the price of camphor; this increase threatens to be so considerable as to actually stop certain industries, such as the making of celluloid, which depend on the supply of camphor.

Many things are said to relieve rheumatic complaints and inflammation; and nervous pain. Yet the Anchor Pain Exsiccator combines the virtues of all. It is the best. 25c and 50c.

Some people of Hille, France, got up a fight between a wild cat and a pig recently, and during the melee the floor gave way and 50 of the spectators were hurt and 2 killed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Has won success far beyond the effect of advertising only.

The secret of its wonderful popularity is explained by its unapproachable merit.

Based upon a prescription which cured people considered incurable,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Unites the best-known vegetable remedies, by such a combination, proportion and process as to have curative power peculiar to itself.

It cures of scrofula, eczema, psoriasis, and every kind of humor, as well as catarrh and rheumatism—prove the best blood purifier ever produced. Its cures of dyspepsia, loss of appetite and that tired feeling make it the greatest stomach tonic and strength-restorer the world has ever known.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Sarsaparilla
is a thoroughly good medicine. Begin to take it TODAY. Get HOOD'S.

was signed by the negotiators and the Queen Regent.

Nevertheless, on December 21, 1898, one month and seventeen days before the senate ratified the treaty, and two weeks before the executive had even transmitted it to that body, President McKinley, of his own volition, secretly issued a proclamation to the Philippines claiming United States sovereignty over the Archipelago and over the persons and property of the people of the islands. A military dictatorship was set up, with the statement of the proclamation that "the military authority is and must remain supreme until the legislation of the United States shall otherwise provide." In a word, the president claimed supreme power over an alien people—an act never interpreted in the history of the world otherwise than a declaration of war.

But it was much more than that. It was a direct violation of the Constitution of the United States. It was a declaration of war against American institutions, as well as against the people of the Philippine Islands. Congress was in session, but was not appealed to by the president. Not one senator or representative, so far as history relates, had any knowledge of the president's proclamation to the Philippines. The legislative branch did not know that the government had suddenly "acquired" an empire in the Orient. Congress, which alone is vested with the power to make war, did not know that a war had been declared.

This was the first step in American imperialism. The paramount issue in the present campaign presents two alternatives: First, the Constitution and the legislative functions of the government shall be permanently subordinate to the arbitrary power of the executive; second, the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government shall each confine itself to the exercise of its constitutional powers, as intended by the nation's founders.

The first alternative presents the empire, represented by Theodore Roosevelt; the second assures the republic, represented by Alton B. Parker.

BONDS

FOR PUBLIC OFFICIALS BY BONDING COMPANIES

One of the Bare-faced Schemes of the Last Legislature to Filch Tax Payers.

Columbus, Oct. 3.—Among the iniquitous laws enacted by the Republican majority of the Seventy-sixth Ohio General Assembly, and resisted by the Democratic minority, was an act requiring that henceforth the bonds of public officials and representatives of courts in this state shall be furnished only by bonding companies. The act seeks to disqualify individual bondsmen, at the expense of the taxpayers, and to increase the profits of the bonding companies by special legislation.

The act was passed at the mandate of the bond companies' lobby in the legislature. There was no other demand for it, and, as a matter of fact, the public had no knowledge of what was being done. The omisseries of the interested companies skillfully covered their tracks. The Republican losses espoused the bill, and not until it was enacted were dark hints heard of bribery, both of members of the general assembly and representatives of the press. The established custom of almost a century was overturned and an immense bonus for all time voted to the corporations which make a specialty of furnishing individual bonds for profit. In the history of American legislation there has never been a more bare-faced scheme than this, concocted for the sole and avowed purpose of taking money from the pockets of the people and giving it over to a single class of corporate interests.

At least one court has already declared its conviction that the act is unconstitutional, and the supreme court will in due time have an opportunity to pass upon it, when the sentiment represented by the Democratic minority in the legislature crystallizes in a test case. Judge E. B. Dillon, a Republican member of the common pleas bench of Franklin county, in an incidental opinion on this law declared his belief that it was unconstitutional, and in his court bonds of private individuals are accepted as formerly. The bonding companies have not yet dared to test the constitutionality of the law and never will dare.

In the various counties of the state the local officers who will be elected next November will be subject to this law when required to give bonds for the faithful performance of their duties. It should not be forgotten that the Republican candidates in every county represent the party that surreptitiously enacted the law, while the Democratic candidates represent the party that opposed it. This is something for taxpayers and all honest citizens to think about, when they come to vote for candidates for such offices as county treasurer, sheriff, recorder, township officers and the like.

Let the Republicans ask their local candidates whether they approve of such legislation, and, if they answer in the negative, let them ask them how they can then consistently stand as the candidates of the party that fastened this law upon the people of Ohio. Every Democratic candidate is opposed to it and represents his party's opposition to it. The way is thus open to rebuke the framers of this law and insure its repeal by the next legislature.

Insane Man Kills Five.
Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 3.—A report to the Commercial Appeal from O'Brien's Landing, Mo., says that four men and a negro woman were killed there by Charles Geistrell, a Memphis, employed as a clerk in a commissary store at that place. Geistrell, it is said, was made from fever, and he rushed from his bed into the street in his night robes, having obtained possession of a gun. He later escaped into the woods. A sheriff and posse are in pursuit.

A curious thing happened at London the other day. Just as the tide in the Thames turned a very heavy rainstorm swept over London, and the waters sent great quantities of bad water into the river. This met the fish as they were coming up stream and killed hundreds of them.

FOUND HANGING WITH HIS HEAD FAST IN TREE CROTCH.

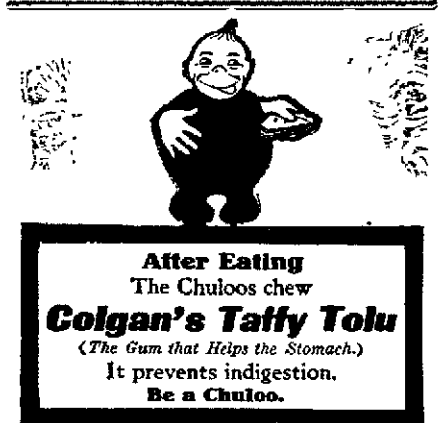

Emanuel Shaffer of New Lexington. Committed Suicide in a Novel Manner.

New Lexington, O., Oct. 3.—Hanging with his head fast in the crotch of a young tree, with feet dangling five feet from the ground, his decomposing body tainting the air, the remains of Emanuel Shaffer, the missing man for whom continuous search has been in progress since last Tuesday, presented a horrifying sight to the discoverers Sunday. The body was found by Ezra Harper in Brown's woods owned by John Elder and situated about two miles east of town.

The supposition that Shaffer was mentally unbalanced was confirmed by the finding of the body. The unfortunate man had committed suicide in a novel and horrible manner. No piece of rope or other attachment had been used. The tree chosen by Shaffer as his instrument of death was selected with the cunning of madness. It was a young dogwood, not four inches thick at the butt, and dividing into two strong forks about 10 feet from the ground. The forks widened out gradually and in order to introduce his head between the two branches, Shaffer must have raised himself several feet above the crotch and then have let himself down again, possibly by losing his hold and falling with a jerk. Once in this position with his head tightly wedged in the crotch, it would have been practically impossible for him to have released himself had he acquired a desire to do so. The position was not such as to break his neck and death must have resulted from slow strangulation the windpipe pressing against the base of the rather rounding crotch. Several minutes must have been required to cause death or even unconsciousness, and his end must have been accomplished by awful torture.

Considerable difficulty was encountered in removing the body, which was finally accomplished by splitting the crotch of the tree and releasing the head.

Shaffer was about 49 or 50 years old, unmarried, and made his home with his aged mother at the corner of Eastern street and Maple Heights. He was a carpenter by trade and a sober, industrious man.

LEFT FOOT

TORN OFF AT ANKLE IN THE B. & O. YARD.

Eugene Munch, a Machinist's Helper, Badly Injured Here on Monday Afternoon.

Eugene H. Munch, whose home is in Seven Pountains, Va., who has been a machinist's helper at the B. & O. shops, was the victim of a painful accident about 12.30 Monday afternoon.

Mr. Munch was riding on the foot-board of a yard engine in the B. & O. yard, and the "spring saddle" of the engine broke, allowing the foot-board to fall upon the tracks. Mr. Munch was caught and his left foot torn off at the ankle.

Bowers & Bradley's ambulance took the injured man to the city hospital, where Drs. J. N. Stone, B. F. Barnes and C. F. Legge amputated the injured member.

Mr. Munch is a cousin of L. N. Munch, member of the Board of Education from the First ward. He is a married man, but has no children.

GEN. STOESEL.

months have insisted that every available ship should be dispatched to the far east has finally prevailed. The argument that no complete victory over the Japanese is possible unless the command of the sea is wrested from them could not be overcome, and though much valuable time has been lost, and the moment seems inauspicious, it is officially intimated that an irrevocable decision has been taken to dispatch the Baltic fleet even if the Port Arthur squadron should be annihilated before its arrival there.

Russians the Aggressors.

Chefoo, Oct. 3.—Severe fighting, the Russians being the aggressors, occurred Sept. 28 and 29 on the west shore of Liao Ti promontory, near Pigeon bay, according to a report brought by Chinese who left Port Arthur Sept. 30. The Russians already apparently are attempting to capture the heavy guns which the Japanese have mounted in that vicinity. The Russians were in considerable force and they made several sorties, dragging field artillery with them. They were unsuccessful, however. Three junks with 16 coolies arrived here. They left Port Arthur because they were forced to carry the wounded and bury the dead. They also were afraid that eventually they would have no food, although rice is plentiful now.

Road in Working Order.

General Oku's Headquarters in the Field, Oct. 3.—The first Japanese train arrived at Liao Yang Saturday evening. The gauge of the railroad has been changed from Dainy to Newchwang. A regular schedule of trains will be established in a few days. Engines and cars have been brought from Japan. The completion of the railway removes entirely the problem of the transportation of supplies and ammunition to the Japanese forces in the field. The train brought a quantity of ammunition, telegraph and railroad supplies.

Japanese Recruits Arriving.

General Oku's Headquarters in the Field, Oct. 3.—The first southbound train over the reconstructed railroad left carrying 490 Japanese wounded, 100 sick and 33 wounded Russian prisoners en route to Japan. The wounded are practically the last of the Japanese wounded at the battle of Liao Yang. The hospitals are now devoted to those suffering from beri beri and other diseases. The positions of the Japanese armies remain unchanged. Skirmishes are of daily occurrence. Thousands of fresh Japanese soldiers are arriving.

Positions of Opposing Armies.

London, Oct. 3.—The correspondent of the Times, who has just returned from the front, telegraphing from Tokyo says the Russians have two divisions on the Hun river, four divisions at Mukden, and the remainder of the army is concentrated at Tie pass, which they are fortifying. The three Japanese armies occupy a front extending for 20 miles north of Liao Yang in their original order.

Struck a Mine.

Chefoo, Oct. 3.—A 90-ton junk from Newchwang to Shanghai ran on a mine 25 miles north of here Saturday night. No one was injured. The junk was kept afloat by her watertight compartment. She reached here with all available hands working at the pumps.

A Telegraph Operator at Prairie du Chien, Wis., was ordered to stop a train because there was trouble on the tracks ahead. He did not have time to set his signals, so threw a lantern through the window of the cab, and the engineer took the hint, stopped and averted a bad accident.

Out in Colby a remedy for the tramp nuisance has been found. The city council had 1,000 meal tickets printed and distributed them among the women. When a tramp knocks at her door and asks for a "handout" he gets one of these tickets, which is good for a meal when signed by the city marshal. When the marshal gets hold of the tramp he compels him to work a couple of hours in payment for the meal. Tramps are scarce in Colby.

The Call.

CAMP Mrs. Brown to call On little Mrs. Jones. They greeted in the hall In most delightful tones. "So rushed," said Mrs. Brown, "I really cannot stay. I've been all over town. It seems to me, today"

And then they talked of books, Of music and of clubs, Of chamber-maids and cooks, Of leaky laundry tubs, Of candles and of soap, Of churches and of gowns, Of fevers and of croup, Of how to ward off frowns.

Of wrinkles, freckles, too; Of divorces and brides, Of scandals old and new, Of fashion's latest strides; Of neighbors and of friends, Of enemies and of kin, Of pleasing coffee blends, Of where "she" got that pin.

Of certain people's debts, Of certain people's fights, Of the contending sets, Of certain women's spite, Of papering the hall, Of what each one had read, Of what one owed the call, Of what somebody said.

Of how "she" held her looks, Of golf and cards and tea, Then back again to cooks, And then—"Oh, goodness me!" Cried Mrs. Brown at last, "I must be rushing on. The afternoon is past— At least, it's almost gone."

"That's one thing I detest— About a formal call— One has to look her best And scarcely talk at all. Stop in, my dear, some day When you're out for a walk; There's so much we could say— When we've time for a talk."

LIGHT THAT KILLS PAIN.

Patent's Experience With the New Anesthetic.

In order to test personally the new anesthetic known as the blue light system, by which tooth extraction is rendered painless, the Geneva correspondent of the London Daily Mail recently underwent an operation for the removal of a troublesome molar at the hands of Dr. Camille Redard, the Swiss discoverer of the method.

Having placed his patient in a recumbent position, the doctor impressed upon him the great importance of faith in the new process, and then commanded him to gaze steadily at an ordinary sixteen candle power electric light with a blue glass bulb, fixed in eighteen inches of his eyes.

And the lamp was a reflector.

After covering up his patient with a large blue cloth the doctor left the room.

"I found myself gazing at the dazzling blue light, which gradually seemed to penetrate my eyes and pass out of the back of my head," writes the correspondent.

"At first I felt a slight burning sensation, which in turn gave way to one of coolness around the eyeballs.

"This feeling passed, and I felt nothing out of the ordinary except that a sensation of rest came over me, and my hands, which were trembling slightly before, were perfectly still now. My senses never left me, and I plainly heard the doctor entering the room.

"He took away the cloth rapidly, placed the blue electric light farther away, tilted the chair up slightly and signed to me with the instrument to open my mouth.

"I felt the instrument grasp the tooth and watched the doctor pull. The next instant I saw the molar before me, not having felt the slightest pain."

Granville, O., Oct. 3.—The Republican primary for corporation and township officers was held Saturday afternoon, and the men were selected to run for the offices that are to be filled this fall. The rivalry for the office of corporation treasurer was very spirited, and even after the polls were closed the friends of E. S. Reed and C. J. Wright were much in doubt as to which would win. Australia. Old Australian settlers are fond of telling a famous story of a tribal chief who walked 60 miles with a spear sticking clear through his body before he could get help to pull it out.

'SQUIRE PIGG

SAYS THAT NEWARK IS BEST LIT-TLE CITY IN OHIO.

Ex-Commissioner interviewed by a Columbus Dispatch Man Tells a Few Things About This Town.

"Over $400,000, almost half a million, is distributed every month in wages by the thriving industries of Newark," observed ex-Commissioner
D. H. Pigg, of Licking county, a resident of Newark, in the course of an interesting chat with a Columbus Dispatch man at the Neil House, Columbus.

"I want to say for its size that it is the best little city in Ohio, and you will find in nine cases out of ten that people who have had occasion to do business there or who know anything about our city will bear me out. From an industrial and business standpoint conditions have never been so favorable as they are now.

"A conservative estimate gives us a population of 25,000, as industrious and frugal and home-loving a community as you will find anywhere in the state. I say home-loving for perhaps in only one other city in the state are there as many families owning their own homes. Dayton and Newark are you know, two of the greatest building association towns in the commonwealth, where it is almost as cheap to pay for a home as it is to rent one, and I am in no way stretching the truth when I make the statement that fully two-thirds of the people of Newark own their own homes. No greater impetus could be given a city's prosperity than that such an almost ideal state of affairs should prevail, and nothing could be more conducive to a solid and substantial community.

"New additions to the city are another index to the steady growth of Newark. Why only a few days ago an addition of 160 lots was sold in one afternoon. I know of another addition in which 200 lots have been purchased during the last 30 days at a price of about $100 each. Railroads go out from Newark to all points of the compass, giving us a ready market for the products of our manufacturing.
So far as railroads are concerned we could not be much better off."

"Newark is usually Democratic and I suppose will give that party between five and six hundred majority. The fact that local officers are to be chosen will bring out a full vote."

Newark and Zanesville.

A runaway horse got caught on an interurban trestle coming this way from Columbus. It knew there was lots of pasture at a place called Newark.—Zanesville Signal

This is supposed to be a joke, but the Signal forget to label it.

The Signal is right—the horse was headed for Newark, just as are scores of people who until recently called Zanesville their home town. Newark is growing at the expense of Zanesville and that's what is hurting our friends down on the muddy Muskingum. In the past year 500 houses were built in Newark and the previous year fully as many. Last week in a few hours over 100 building lots here were sold by a single company. All of our factories and shops are running full tilt and paying out nearly a half million dollars in wages every month.
The interurban lines are bringing in the people from the surrounding towns and old Newark is forging to the front as she never did before. The population is getting well on towards the 25,000 mark and there is every reason to believe she will soon pass it. When the figures of the next census are compiled it will be seen that Newark has run away ahead of Zaneville. That's what's the matter with the Signal. Cheer up, Signal. Come over on the trolley line to Newark and see what a live town looks like.

at this place.

V. M. Van Winkle and family were entertained at the home of Mr. Geo.
Clark.

visiting friends in this vicinity, has returned to her home in Newark.

BOX TIPPED

And William Evans the Undertaker, Fell: Receiving Severe Injuries.
Two Ribs Broken.

Mr. William Evans, the well known West Church street undertaker, had the misfortune to meet with a very painful accident at his place of business on Saturday evening. He had climbed on a box to reach an article that was on a high shelf, when the box tipped, and he fell across a trestle, fracturing two ribs of the left side.
The injury is a very serious one, and is aggravated by the respiratory movements of the chest. Dr. J. W. Alexander attended the injured man.

GRANVILLE

Meeting in Memory of Prof. Clarence
L. Herrick—Signs Initiation—Granville Personals.

Granville, O., Oct. 3.—At Recital Hall a meeting of the Scientific Association was held in memory of Prof.
Clarence L. Herrick. The speakers of the evening were Mr. Frisbie of Steel High school, Dayton, Prof. A. D. Cole of Columbus, and Prof. G. F. McKibbin of this place. The meeting was highly instructive and interesting, its features explaining the works in which Prof. Herrick was so interested, and for which he showed such remarkable ability. The audience at this meeting, which was a very large one was proof of the esteem in which Prof. Herrick was held.

At the meeting of the Signs on Friday Will Lewis of Toledo, was initiated into the fraternity.

After a short visit with friends and relatives Mrs. M. C. Brown and little daughter, Ella, have returned to their home in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Green of Fairfield county, who have been visiting relatives just east of the village for a few days, returned home today.

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade says he has often heard druggists inquire of customers who asked for a cough medicine, whether it was wanted for a child or for an adult, and if for a child they almost invariably recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it, and for coughs, colds and croup it is unsurpassed. For sale by all druggists.

The rudiment of a third eye exists in a lizard. Disregard for a time his two bright eyes, one on each side of his head, and look directly down on the center of the skull between them.
Here we find an oddly shaped scale marked with a little depression, and this is, indeed, what is left of our Cy-clopean eye. The horse, the bat, the mole, the monkey and the seal all have a trace of this third eye.

Moore, one of the directors of the company, who formerly kept the books of the company, testified. It was discovered that the company had book accounts which had not been scheduled as assets; also a steam engine at Newark valued at $250 which was not scheduled.

The Licking Co. Fair

Opens Tomorrow

ARE YOU GOING?

The exposition of Woman's Wear is not to be found in the fair grounds. Ask any Licking county woman where to find the most complete showing of fashionable stuffs for gowns, where to find the swellest Fall Suits and Coats, where to buy the stockings and the gloves, and the Shirtwaists and the Underwear that women need and the answer will always be at The Powers-Miller Co.

There isn't a woman in this world who won't be more interested in nice things to wear, than even in prize stock or lucious pies, and so we invite you to our Women's Wear Exposition as one of the sights of fair time.

Fall stocks are full and complete now. Every counter groans with the weight of its beautiful burden, every case and package is brimming over with style and beauty for womankind. There is something worth seeing in every aisle, a fascination in only breathing the same air with all the new merchandise.

If you are already a customer, you will be greatly pleased with the way this store has gone ahead. Never before in the history of Newark has there been such a display of cool weather wearables. We will be glad to welcome you and show you everything you are interested in.

But it is the stranger, the people who know us not that this message is particularly addressed to. To them our goods, our prices, our way of doing business will be a revelation.

If you are one of them, accept this as a personal invitation. Come, see and admire. The exposition is free, even the inclination or the wish to buy is not necessary.

Buy or not as you please, we don't care. This is our show time and our business during fair week is more that of exhibitor than as sellers.

A special feature of this modern store is the ladies' waiting and dressing room. You are invited to take advantage of this convenience. Second floor. Take the elevator.
